IDAHO

Idaho does not have any statutory requirements for Alzheimer’s disease or dementia training.

Assisted Living

Idaho has limited dementia training regulations governing assisted living facilities. Training must be provided in enumerated areas (i.e. communication, behavior management and stress reduction). Staff must have eight (8) hours of job-related training per year, and must have training in appropriate areas where the assisted living facility admits residents with a diagnosis of dementia.

Medicaid Waiver

Idaho has a Medicaid state plan and waiver that provide reimbursement for personal care assistance.